What is generally current here is that the Union Pacific has been bought by individual interests, which have such large holdings in the Chicago and Northwestern that they can make any arrangement they see fit between the Union Pacific and the Chicago and Northwestern.

OFFER TO BURLINGTON.
TERMS TO STOCKHOLDERS.
THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M. BOSTON, April 30.—The official circular issued by the directors of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, making announcement of details of the offer of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern companies, to purchase the capital stock of the Burlington road, was mailed to stockholders today. The circular is an amplification of facts previously made known concerning the deal, leading the offer to purchase the Burlington stock on the basis of $90 in bonds for $100 in stock, the circular says the bonds are to be the joint obligation of the Northern Pacific and of the Great Northern companies, and that the stockholders as a whole will receive a cash dividend of $100 in bonds and $40 in cash.

As previously stated, the bonds are to be interest at the rate of 4 per cent, per annum from July 1, 1901, and are to be redeemable at the option of the stockholders on or before July 1, 1901, or on any coupon day thereafter. The purchasing companies are believed to be the same as those who bought the whole of the bonds; the number of bonds to be paid will be designated by lot.

Leyland Line Deal Provokes Apprehension Regarding the Commercial Supremacy of the United States.

THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M. LONDON, May 1.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Leyland line deal provokes unusual discussion in the English papers, which reveals the existence of not a little apprehension as to the possibility of the United States dominating the Atlantic carrying trade. The general impression, however, is that the transfer is connected with the probable passage by the United States Senate of a bill which is considered that the terms of the transfer are no profitable to the Leyland people than there is to the other shipping company which is to be the recipient of the transfer. The effects of the transfer are discussed in all their bearings. Sir Christopher Furness, who contributed to the Daily Mail a long article dealing with the deal and others trusts in the United States, insists upon the necessity of the country waking up to meet the new competition.

The Daily Telegraph adds editorially whether the whole empire has to be bought up or bought out by American millionaires. It calls J. Pierpont Morgan, the Bonaparte of trade, and thinks the British public will be very foolish if it allows the transfer to take place. It says that there is no intention to withdraw the vessels of the Leyland line from the Union. "This is a serious situation," says the Daily Telegraph, "which calls for prompt action. It is not only a matter of national pride, but it is a matter of national safety. The enormous growth of the American export trade and the consequent increase of American shipping tonnage."

RECEIVER FOR MONTANA COMPANY.
NEW YORK, April 30.—Application was made today by Justice Andrews to the Supreme Court for John McArthur to be receiver for the Eastern Montana Copper Company of Montana. He demands an accounting of the company's affairs, and claims that the company is in the hands of the Boston and Montana companies. The court made the order returnable May 5, and granted temporary injunction restraining the Boston and Montana companies from disposing in any way of any of its property or assets during the pending suit.

THE PHILIPPINES GRAND SMASH OF REBELLION.

Alejandro and Tinio
Have Surrendered.

Ex-Priest Aglipay and Others Come In.

Capt. McDonald Defeats an Insurgent Band—Trial
of Capt. Reed.

(BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.) MANILA, April 30, 3 p.m.—[By Manila Cable.] The report that Gen. Alejandro and Tinio had surrendered, confirmed the possibility of the possible successor of Aguinaldo, Pedro Aglipay, the ex-communicated Filipino priest, who preached the doctrine of a holy war against the United States, has also surrendered.

The surrenders of Baldomero Aguinaldo and Pedro Aglipay, relatives of Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, are expected shortly.

Fifteen Filipino officers have surrendered to Col. Baldwin at Cavite Viejo.

Gen. Tinio, with his entire command, surrendered April 29 to Capt. Frederick W. Krug of the Twentieth Infantry, at Sinait, province of South Ilocos.

AGUINALDO'S SURRENDER.
(BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.) MANILA, April 30.—Aguinaldo was subpoenaed as a witness for the defense in a Mandamus case, pending in Taytay, province of Morong, but later it was decided he is not available. The Atlantic carrying trade, the general impression, however, is that the transfer is connected with the probable passage by the United States Senate of a bill which is considered that the terms of the transfer are no profitable to the Leyland people than there is to the other shipping company which is to be the recipient of the transfer.

CHIEF'S RELATIVES SURRENDER.
(BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.) MANILA, April 30.—[By Manila Cable.] Baldomero Aguinaldo and Pedro Aglipay, relatives of Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, and five other insurgent leaders have surrendered.

CAPT. REED'S TRIAL.
BARRY BALDWIN INTIMIDATED.
(BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.) MANILA, April 30, 3 p.m.—[By Manila Cable.] The trial of Capt. James C. Reed, ex-deputy commissary at Manila, charged with soliciting and receiving bribes and with other official misconduct, which trial began yesterday, was continued today and was severely contested. Thomas Hastings, a book-keeper of the firm of Robinson, Macdonald, testified that Robinson paid Capt. Reed $800. The firm's books contained entries to that effect. Fred Macdonald testified that he arranged to give to Capt. Reed 10 per cent, commission on sales of vegetables furnished to transports. Robinson testified, Barry Baldwin, formerly U. S. Attorney General, and now Mayor of San Francisco, made a statement to the court. He said that attempts had been made to intimidate him, and he asked for the protection of the court. Baldwin testified to having a $200,000 bond for Capt. Reed, and that he had been threatened by Robinson. Robinson testified that he had been threatened by Robinson. Robinson testified that he had been threatened by Robinson.

PROSECUTION RESTS.
(BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.) MANILA, April 30.—Mr. Wolf, a partner in the firm of Castle Bros., testified concerning attempts to secure a commission for Capt. Reed out of the sale of vegetables.

Col. Woodruff, head of the substance department at Manila, gave testimony concerning which Baldwin gave evidence to the court.

Mr. Carson, chief clerk of the depot commissary, testified to one object of a shortage being covered by placing five laborers at 40 cents per man, and he emergency pay roll. This witness also testified concerning the investigation into the alleged bribe paid to Capt. Reed.

REBELLION'S COLLAPSE.
EFFECTED BY SURRENDERS.
(BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.) WASHINGTON, April 30.—Two important cablegrams were received today at the War Department from Gen. MacArthur at Manila. In the opinion of the officials the news contained in them marks the almost complete collapse of organized rebellion in the Philippines. The cablegrams are as follows:

"Gen. Tinio surrendered with his command today at Sinait. He will deliver all men and guns in his command as soon as they can be gathered together. This completely pacifies the first department of Northern Luzon, for many months the worst in Luzon."

"Col. Cipriano Callos and Gregorio Katibao, Malvar's best officers, surrendered to Col. Kline at Lipa on April 28, with 25 officers, 100 men and 50 rifles."

Tinio is said here to have been, with Alejandro, one of the highest officers in the insurrectionary force. He was commander in Northern Luzon during the famous chase after Commander Gilmore.

Malvar, whose collapse was expected, was also one of the best of the Philippine leaders. He was a most formidable foe, and commanded the insurgents at the fight at Zauto River, the most serious battle fought in the Philippines. He has confined his operations to Southern Luzon, which never has been completely subjected, and Lipa, where the surrender occurred, has long been one of the principal insurgent arsenals. It is now the War Department by officers recently back from the Philippines that there now remains in the field in Luzon only one chief whom they are particularly desirous of catching, namely, Calibao, the head hunter. This man has violated every rule of warfare, and it is not expected that he will be taken alive.

Later, the following cable message dated today at Manila, was received from Gen. MacArthur, announcing several other important surrenders in the Philippines:

"Juan and Blas Villamor, leaders of Abra, surrendered at Bayambang, April 27; now engaged assembling scattered commands, delivered arms. Aglipay, ex-priest, leader of the revolt in Northern Luzon, surrendered at Laoag, April 28."

DAVIS A SCAPEGOAT.
COMMENT OF OFFICERS.
(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.) WASHINGTON, April 30.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Comment on this morning's news from the commissary investigation at Manila is general about the War and Navy departments. The terms that it contained are interpreted as conveying any more than its precise words. This morning's dispatches make another and more complete disclosure that the Philippine government in army circles that an officer who, through any accident not involving wrongdoing or even culpable negligence on his part, loses the property of the government, and whose accounts thus show a shortage on settling day, never has any difficulty in clearing his good name by going before a duly constituted board of his fellow-officers and making his explanation in detail.

Capt. Reed may be making Maj. Davis a scapegoat by pretending, in his own dealings with the contractors, to be acting in Maj. Davis's behalf. The theory is that the contractors, by a dispatch sent this morning by Maj. Davis to Col. Woodruff, tell him where all the (Davis's) papers are, and that they will be able to clear his good name by going before a duly constituted board of his fellow-officers and making his explanation in detail.

The question of character and form of the first centralized general civil government in the Philippines is a subject yet undecided. It is certain that the ultimate authority under the first general civil government will be the representative of the United States, and a legislative body composed of Filipinos or other will, at the outside, be subject and partly composed of the governor and his official cabinet.

Taft said that a general central government of the Philippines was established in which the people of Negro would certainly have representation; that there was no purpose on the part of the United States to take the vote in the government than their progress and circumstances entitled them to, and that the Philippine government was practically provincial in character and intended eventually to be replaced by a government of greater scope and liberality. Some of the leading Visayan speakers argued that it was better to make all the provincial officers appointive by the commission for the reason that where evils such as extortion and mismanagement existed, they would be stamped out by the use of another system.

The official result of the three days' visit in Bacolod was the adoption of a resolution declaring the advisability of establishing two provincial governments in the Philippines, one in the north and one in the south, separated by the chain of mountains running lengthwise of the island, called respectively, Occidental and Oriental Negros; but the application of the provisions of the resolution to the eastern district was deferred until the conditions more accurately determined.

turned to Wichita, and the suspect was taken into custody.

When arrested, although somewhat surprised, the prisoner evinced no opposition, and said he was willing to accompany the officers without a contest and "rove his identity. Waiting a few days to obtain all the information he could concerning the man in custody, Langford started Saturday morning from Newton, Kan., where the suspect was taken immediately on his arrest, and accompanied by Marshall Greiner, a brother-in-law of the suspect, who was taken into custody at 9:30 o'clock this evening.

News that Dunham had been captured spread through the town like wildfire, and hundreds flocked to the jail. Only a few could be admitted at a time. The suspect was placed on inspection for two hours, and all who desired saw and with him. One was, however, able to identify the suspect with any degree of positiveness.

The suspect says his name is C. F. Crill, and his birthplace Rome, N. Y. According to his story he has lived an erratic life, stopping only a few years in a place. He accounts for the scar on the back of his head, which is one of the means of identification, by saying that he got it in a fight in Mexico. He claims to have been married in 1887 to Dora Shreider in Cripple Creek, and says he has a son 18 years old now living with his mother in that city. He says he has lived in Pueblo most of the time for the past ten years, and gives the name of Will Lang, a bookbinder, whom he has been acquainted with during this period.

BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—EMERSON, April 30.—The snowstorm which has been raging since the evening of the 28th, has caused a collision between a passenger train and a freight train, resulting in the death of a passenger and the injury of several others.

The collision occurred near the town of Fairville, where a passenger train carrying Whitelaw Reid and O. Mills, was struck by a freight train. Reid and Mills were injured, and the freight train was derailed.

The passenger train was carrying a party of tourists, including Whitelaw Reid and O. Mills. The freight train was carrying a load of lumber. The collision occurred at a crossing where the two trains had the right of way.

RIGHT-DOING BY THE NATION.

Vice-President's Speech at Boston.

Work of the Past and the Future.

"America" Should Be a Name of Pride to Each and Every American.

BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.
BOSTON, April 30.—An imposing array of speakers, headed by Vice-President Roosevelt, held the attention of 1000 members of the Home Market Club at its twelfth annual dinner in Mechanics' Hall.

Vice-President Roosevelt was seated on the right of the president of the club, George A. Draper. Other members near President Draper were Senators George F. Hoar and Henry Cabot Lodge, Joseph H. Munley of Maine, Bishop William Lawrence of Massachusetts, William F. Draper, former Ambassador to Italy, and Rear-Admiral Sampon.

Previous to the dinner, a reception was held in honor of Vice-President Roosevelt. The immense hall was hung in all sides with a mass of color, numerous political mottoes and pictures.
The Vice-President was greeted with a storm of applause and three cheers.

Vice-President Roosevelt said:
"In reading the profoundly interesting and suggestive biography of the great scientist Huxley, one cannot but be struck by his constant insistence upon the fact that the only way to truth, but of doing it. That is, of factually—recognizing actual conditions as the basis for the truth."

One way of facing facts is to remain factually—recognizing actual conditions as the basis for the truth. One way of facing facts is to remain factually—recognizing actual conditions as the basis for the truth. One way of facing facts is to remain factually—recognizing actual conditions as the basis for the truth.

But the underlying fact remains that with individual success of the kind which is alone worth having must come from obeying the laws that tell both for our material well-being. We cannot afford to follow that world teaching which would lead us to the neglect of the body; nor on the other hand can we afford in any way to neglect the questions of material prosperity. For, in the short run, we as a nation must act much as each man here tries to act, while seeking so to do his life to the best advantage, and more than that he has any business to be wicked. He must do so; and he must also show that he owns in the busy world of life. Each of us wishes his son to earn his living, to support himself, to be a man of material, and of course as a nation we must strive to shape our governmental policies in matters of finance, of tariff, of foreign relations, so that the highest material prosperity which can be obtained by legislation.

Some excellent remarks were made that the argument of material prosperity is a base argument; whereas, of course, we must teach the young that it is a base in a man to teach his son that it is a prime duty to be self-supporting. But to argue only from the standpoint of material prosperity would be base. A good man always hopes to see his son a man of material prosperity, but he also wishes to see him earn his living. In addition to doing well as merchant or mechanic, farmer or laborer, he must have a noble character, whatever his profession may be—he also wishes to see him do his duty to his God and man; his duty to his fellow dependents upon him; his duty to his fellows individually, and his duty to the state as a whole. Even today in a spirit of self-respect, nobility, pride. A little over four years ago business disaster had caused such widespread panic among people that, in addition to the 200 million from which we were suffering, we were threatened with the adoption of a governmental policy which would have dragged the nation through the ashes of humiliation, put an indelible stain upon our good name, and inflicted a telling blow upon our reputation for shrewd common sense.

"At the same time, the situation in the great island of Cuba, lying at our very doors, was such as absolutely to demand our intervention. Under President McKinley we entered upon an era of constructive policy. Our leaders had to show, not that they could criticise, but that they could do things—which is hard. We had to build up a legislative and administrative system in which our domestic well-being should be restored, while at the same time we were pledged to solve in foreign affairs a more intricate problem than had hitherto been presented to the nation for solution. Both facts were accomplished, and were accomplished successfully. There was a little tendency to forget alike their dignity and their importance.
The dangers were so completely overcome that, following the universal habit of mankind, we tend now to ignore the fact that they ever existed, or that those who solved them have a last claim upon the gratitude of all of us."

DOMESTIC PROSPERITY.
"Before treating of the new duties that have come to us in the larger national life upon which we have entered, I wish to say a word upon the extraordinary domestic prosperity which has been brought about in such large part by the policy for which the Home Market Club has so pre-eminently stood. Exactly as a man is not much for his neighbor unless he first of all earns his own livelihood and sees to the well-being of his household, so our domestic well-being must ever be of prime importance in the eyes of our public men.

So, of this club have been unwavering in their devotion to sound economic thought. You have with hearty enthusiasm upheld the finally successful effort to put the gold standard upon as safe a basis as it is possible by legislation to put; you have steadily advocated a tariff policy which in its actual working has vindicated itself by a success which is literally astounding. It has benefited not merely the manufacturer and the wage worker, but the whole population. It has built up an elaborate and highly diversified industrial system at home, has provided a return for labor which is absolutely unparalleled anywhere else, and, contrary to all the predictions of its opponents, has opened an immense export trade with every part of the world. There have been no changes in detail to suit the shifting national needs; but you have once for all established the principle that the tariff shall always protect the conditions of our own industry, and that it is equally to the difference in the labor cost here and abroad. So complete has this policy been that it has made it impossible to complete the self-justification of the protective system, that the highest tariff in the world should be treated less as a matter for party controversy, than for scientific discussion and administrative application. In other words, shall be treated simply from the business standpoint, from the point of view of the nation as a whole, and of our several national needs as time and the circumstances of new conditions may make these clear. As for the tariff, even its opponents are now but half-hearted in their opposition to it; for wherever attacks now must indeed speak against the light.

SUCCESS AND DANGER.
"So complete has been the success of our economic legislation and administration that this very success brings with it a certain element of danger.
Since the days of Huxley the tendency of prosperity to unsettle the people who benefit by it has been a compliance of philosophy. No law and no order has been the best chance for business capacity, industry and intelligence. This has been done, and so triumphant has been the result that it can only be jeopardized by over-eagerness to discount the future, or recklessness in the enjoyment of the present. No laws can insure good fortune, either to the individual or to the community, when the one or the other embarks on a career of speculation.
If the business world loses its head, it loses what legislation cannot supply.
Just exactly as no laws can make a farming community prosper in time of drought or flood, so the wisest conduct of the government cannot offset a general business refusal to act with moderation and prudence. Against our own folk we must ourselves be on guard."

"In dealing with our new duties abroad we must approach them in the same spirit necessary for the solution of the problems that confront us at home—that is, in a spirit which shall combine business capacity with the highest standard of fearlessness and integrity—practical common sense with resolute devotion to the right, by acting in such a spirit will we ever be able to cleanse the dark spots in our national character, and to secure such a spirit can we solve the tremendous problems arising from the extreme rapidity and highly complex nature of our great industrial development. Finally, only by acting in such a spirit can we really do our duty in the new fields of labor and effort which have been opened to us by the results of the Spanish war."

"Whether we are glad or sorry that the new work has been allotted to us is a matter of small moment compared to the purpose with which we approach it. The one who keeps the matter of temperament; the other a matter of principle. Some among us feel that the new generation should be taught to be favored by providence that it is thrice the chance to do a mighty work; that this nation, which has as a strong man to run a race, because
the future opens to it the same opportunity for such a career as the past which has its glory in the past. Others of us approach our new duties in more modest and sober tones, and with no regret, but as tasks which henceforth come as the day's work and must be performed as such. Yet we must greatly that the necessity ever arose to do these new tasks; but since the necessity has arisen, having the idea of shirking them than of shirking any other disagreeable and necessary task, we must not matter much what one of these attitudes is ours; but it does matter immensely that we should recognize the purpose in the new material prosperity, but also because it stands for lofty and generous aspirations, high effort and unyielding resolution."

NEW DUTIES.
"For good or for evil, we now find ourselves with new duties in the West Indies and new duties beyond the Pacific. We cannot escape the performance of these duties. All we can depend upon is whether we will do them well or ill. Moreover the duties affect us each and all. I speak of our countrymen who live in New England, but as Americans keenly interested in whatever is of interest to any part of the land, honorably zealous for the rights of all Americans, and eager for the greatness of every portion of our common country, whether we dwell in the interior, or on the coast of the Atlantic or of the Pacific, we are bound in every way by every tie of patriotism, by every consideration of that loftier kind of self-interest which looks far into the future, to help in all measures which tend to uphold any part of the nation, confident that the duty is completely upon the nation in its entirety. Our interests, whether in the Gulf of Mexico or in Central America, or in the Philippines, whether as regards the nations of Europe or of Asia, are bound in every way to be looked at always from the standpoint of our people as a whole."

"It is, of course, impossible that we should undertake these new duties across the seas without being brought into closer and more frequent contact with foreign nations. And, indeed, our case in the past; and, indeed, our growth in wealth and population must alone ensure such growing frequency of contact. This should need and in long-headedness in sobriety when we deal with these foreign peoples, to be blunt and above all to bad trait in an individual, and if possible it is an even worse trait in a nation. We earnestly hope and trust that in the future the chance of

with any foreign, and especially with any friendly foreign nation. Vain glorious boasting, and readiness to trophy denunciation of others, are not the signs of a strong man in private life; nor does the public man who sorts to such expedients tend to elevate his people either in their own eyes or in those of other nations. Let us ever remember that temperate language goes best with a readiness to perform great deeds, and that we should be equally careful not to get into trouble needlessly, and, if we have to get into it, always to get out of it honorably.

The only way to play a great part in the world is to do the things which in the aggregate make up that great part. The way to it is to do the things which are the duty of the citizen, and to do them properly. The particular duties of the present time are the duties of the war with Spain, our chief problem as regards the outside world has been those in Cuba, the Philippines and China. We have a right to feel proud of the way in which in our action as responsible citizens we have been able to combine a proper disinterestedness with a just regard for our own national interests. We have neither failed in our duty to ourselves, nor in our duty to the world. We have not failed without paying heed to what is due to ourselves. Still we have been able to take them up unless willing to perform them in accordance with the dictate of the highest sense of duty, and view to the ultimate benefit of mankind at large. In other words, we must approach this world as we do to do it well, just as we approach our work at home—failing never in the quality of the head nor in the heart. To be merely sentimental would be of course to be of no use to us, but in irreparable wrong to those on whose behalf our sentimentality is a weakness. It is a weakness AS REGARDS CHINA.

"As regards China, I need say but little, for it is hardly worth while wasting breath on the very few who misunderstand our policy. We have simply performed our part in a bit of international police duty; we have restored order to a country which was in a state of anarchy, and we have done so as a result of our action, and whoever else does not see it, let it be in what we did ought logically to object to all exercise of the police power. There is no more to be said 'militarism' in what was done by us in China than there is 'militarism' when the government of the United States branded with infamy had we not taken measures to give the honor roll to the unspeakable cruelties of the Boxers, and to protect our citizens from the unpleasantness which resulted from the official attack upon them. All civilized nations have a right to feel that the gallant force under gallant Gen. Chaffee was a part of the expeditious army which reached Peking in the nick of time to avert a fearful tragedy."

"From indeed, should we be as Americans the Stars and Stripes fluttered among the flags whose approach meant safety from torture and murder, and worse than torture and murder to the hunted women and children and despairing men who stood behind their crumbling legation walls.
We should be proud of the signal of gallantry of our general and his troops; and we should be even prouder because that gallantry was not stained by murder and cruelty. Under the greatest provocation our government refused to yield to the clamor for mere revenge and to take part in the con-vulge at any effort to partition China; while our soldiers have borne crowded by Chinese refugees of all ages and sexes, and have been witness to the cause they have learned that our people are terrible in battle, they are gentle in victory, and that helpless are sure of protection under the American flag."

IN CUBA.
"In Cuba, we have had to face a harder battle than a simple task. We were pledged to bring peace, freedom and independence to the island, and we have been repeatedly bent upon a policy which would have kept the island in a state of anarchy. Yet we pledge not merely in the letter, but in the spirit. To have driven out the Spanish army and to have kept the island in a state of anarchy would have meant the breaking of our own pledge; that this nation, which has
the future opens to it the same oppor-
any other disagreeable and necessary
stands for lofty and generous aspira-
tion."

Indies and new duties beyond the Pacific. We cannot escape the performance of these duties. All we can de-
well or ill. Moreover the duties affect
England, but as Americans keenly
zealous for the rights of all Americans, and eager for the greatness of
every portion of our common country,
whether we dwell in the interior, or
Pacific, we are bound in every way
entirety. Our interests, whether in the Gulf of Mexico or in Central America,
or in the Philippines, whether as re-

"It is, of course, impossible that we

KINNEY AS A PHILANTHROPE.

In the Evening Express of Saturday, Abbot Kinney, a resident of Los Angeles and Santa Monica, had a communication on the subject of the location of a site for the Chamber of Commerce building. Mr. Kinney vouchsafes the information that I. W. Hellman and Geo. Otis "are the principal backers of the proposition," and adds the more or less unimportant and unimportant statement that "both of these men are influential, and both are feared in one way or another by many citizens." This is the first intimation we have had that the numerous public-spirited citizens who made up the new $30,000 Chamber of Commerce building fund acted under a reign of terror. Mr. Kinney then goes on to say that "the location of the building was placed in the hands of a small committee with power to act. The committee has taken the grounds that a bonus of $30,000 to the building fund is the sole question determining the location."

As to this, the committee was already explained that the bylaws of the Chamber of Commerce, adopted many years ago, provide that no building shall be erected until there is a $30,000 in the building fund. Consequently, the committee had no option in the matter. Having no funds of its own, it was necessary for the Chamber of Commerce to raise the money in the shape of a bonus. (There was no "easy judgment" about the proposition. Bids were asked for sites, the matter was published and discussed in all the papers, and the offer was kept open for several months. Property owners in other sections of the city had every chance to take advantage of the opportunity, but they failed to do so. The north-end property owners put up their good money, and they captured the plum.

The intimation that the two citizens named by Mr. Kinney had anything more to do with the choice of a site than many other citizens is unfounded and untrue. They each subscribed a moderate amount of money to the fund, which amount they would not have been willing to materially increase, not considering that their interest in the location of a site warranted larger subscriptions. In short, they aimed to do their fair share—no more, no less—as property owners and citizens. The Times does not say that it would not have subscribed money toward a location farther away, had the opportunity presented itself.

Further on in his communication Mr. Kinney proceeds to prove, to his own satisfaction, at least, that the location of a public building, such as a post-office, a library or a museum, instead of being an advantage to any section of the city, is a disadvantage, and a positive detriment. He refers to the case of the Sing Sing, which he states has injured the town in which it is located and that the citizens have petitioned for a change of name. What particular connection there is between the location of a State penitentiary and a Chamber of Commerce building is not evident in the average mind, but then, nobody has been known to claim that Mr. Kinney has an average mind. The funny thing about this affair is that property owners in the southern part of the city, who have been along claiming consistently, as Mr. Kinney does, that the location of the Chamber of Commerce will have no influence in regarding the southward growth of business, should yet, at the same time, be so violently opposed to the location of the building north of Second street. No protest has been heard from members of the Chamber of Commerce, as mem-

J.; Ethan Allan Hitchcock as a clerk in the Hongkong store of Oliphant & Co.; Lyman J. Gage, at fifteen, as a beginner in a bank in Rome, N. Y.; Charles Emory Smith as a compositor in the office of the Albany (N. Y.) Knickerbocker; John D. Long as a chore boy on a farm in Bucksfield, Me., and James Wilson, at twenty, working as a farm hand in Iowa.

This article is timely, as showing how baseness is the oft-repeated assertion that the government is conducted by the benefit of so-called "plutocrats." Most of the men who have occupied the Presidential chair (including the present occupant), have sprung from the "common people," as the phrase goes, and have raised themselves by means of innate worth and strength of purpose to that exalted position, which is a higher and more honorable estate than that of the greatest plutocrat.

It is a grand and glorious thing to live in a free land, where the humblest citizen is eligible to the supreme position of honor and trust and responsibility. It is, moreover, a beneficent thing that the principles and the benefits of free government are gradually extending to other and less-favored parts of the world. We shall see that the leaves of republicanism will not, in the course of time, leave the whole mass of human government?

THE RAIN.
"It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good." The rain which has just drenched the greater part of California, from the Oregon line to the Gulf of Mexico, has wrought both good and ill. But the good which it has done will far outweigh the harm; therefore, we may properly rejoice and be thankful. Rain seldom comes amiss in California. If the storm which has just visited us had come a month earlier, or even two weeks ago, it would have been of far greater benefit, and would have caused practically no injury. The damage which has been done is done to hay which has been cut, and to grain which is fully ripe. All growing crops will be benefited. A heavy yield of corn is probably assured by this rain, which comes very opportunely for that crop. Beets will also receive incalculable benefit. The pastures in many localities will be renewed, and the benefits to fruit trees of all kinds will be great, giving them the vigor and strength which they need to withstand the coming winter. Altogether, the rain is an undoubtedly blessing, though rather long deferred.

WHAT THE WORLD OWES.
While we are accustomed nowadays to big figures, the statistics recently given out by the Treasury Bureau, in regard to the national debt of the world, are something of a staggerer. Thirty-one billion dollars is the aggregate of the national debts of the world at the close of the nineteenth century. This is ten times as much as in the closing years of the eighteenth century.

In 1793, at the beginning of the Napoleonic wars, the national debt of the world amounted to approximately $2,500,000,000; in 1900 they were, according to the best information obtainable, $31,000,000,000. In general terms, it may be said that the world's national indebtedness in 1900 aggregated ten times what it did at the beginning of the nineteenth century. Mentioning the population has increased 150 per cent. only, and gold and silver, which form the basis of the money with which the debt payments are made, only 300 per cent.

This, on the face of it, looks like a bad showing, but then we learn also that the total wealth of four countries, Great Britain, France, Spain and the United States, is about ten times what it was at the beginning of the century. If the wealth of the rest of the world has increased in anything like the same proportion, the discrepancy between our resources and our debts is not so great, after all. It would, of course, be very inconvenient if the world should be called on at short notice to pay what it owes to itself, in cash, but then, that is not likely to happen.

THE KINNEY CABINET.
Mortimer A. Downing has an article in the Success Magazine for May on the personnel of the McKinley Cabinet. He declares, with truth, that "nothing proclaims the virility of this republic more emphatically, nor argues more eloquently for the stability of its future, than a study of the history of President McKinley's advisers." Mr. Downing calls attention to the fact that not one of the Cabinet members came from wealthy parents; that not one ever knew "the questionable luxury of eating the bread of idleness"; that each one has "painfully climbed, step by step, the ladder of fortune, some of them unaided by friends or relatives." He calls attention, further, to the fact that "only one member of the present Cabinet still resides in the home of his birth, or has had political honors conferred on him in his own land, so to speak, and by his own people." The one exception is that of Atty.-Gen. Griggs, who was born in Paterson, N. J., and still resides there. The only other member of the Cabinet who is accredited to the Cabinet from the State of his birth is Elfin Root, Secretary of War, who was born in Clinton, N. Y.

A further matter of interest is the fact that only two of the Cabinet officers received a college education. These two are Secretary Hay, who was graduated in 1858 from Brown University, and Atty.-Gen. Griggs, who was graduated from Lafayette College in 1868. Each of the other members of the Cabinet received only a common-school education in early life, and they acquired such further education as they received through their own exertions. Sketches of the lives of these Cabinet officers are given, illustrated by drawings which show John Hay as a clerk to President Lincoln in the very room of the White House where

LA FIESTA DECORATIONS.

Will Be Most Elaborate Ever Made.

Reviewing Stand the Beauty Center.

Fiesta Committee Considers Bids for Music—Plans for School Pupils.

Decorations for La Fiesta de los Flores will eclipse any previously seen in Los Angeles. This is not only true of the public display which will be made by the committee in charge of that part of the celebration, but it applies to the private displays to be arranged in the homes of the members of the party. Already merchants have commenced to dress their windows for the coming festival, now only a week in the future, and today the employees of the Fiesta Decoration Committee will begin the task of preparing the streets for the decorations.

Chief among the brilliant attractions in this line will be the reviewing stand in front of the City Hall, from which the President and members of his party will see the floral parade. In the splendor of its equipment it will rival the features of the procession. The south section of the stand, which will be devoted to the use of the President and other distinguished visitors, will be draped in yellow and green. The remainder of the stand will be done in yellow. The drapery in this part of the decoration will be pleated and tucked into various flares, and interspersed through these colors will be tri-colored shields emblematic of the American flag. The top of the stand will be the top of the stand in the parade, and it will be decorated with flags and bunting. The stand will be 36 feet long. The construction of the stand is now in progress, and it is expected that it will be completed by the time the parade is held.

HOTTEST OF THEM ALL

School Board Squabbles
Three Hours.

Millard Chosen Deputy
Superintendent.

Ineffectual Attempt to Elect Assistant—Warm Words
Flow Very Freely.

Friends of school board members will be glad to know there were no blows. Nearly everything else argumentative was on tap at last night's session of that body.

For three hours these chosen arbiters of things scholastic wandered with great informality through the fields of education. Great whiffs of thought went back and forth across the table, while little boulders of sarcasm and immense went bumpety bump against the official crustacean.

With the exercise of much labor and parliamentary ingenuity the debris was finally cleared away. It was then found that the accomplishments of the most stormy school-board session in years was the selection of a deputy superintendent. Prof. J. B.
Millard, principal of the Spring-street school, was chosen by eight votes.
Chairman Washburn voted for Prof. J.
B. Millard, principal of the Twenty-eighth-street school. None of the other five applicants secured a place in the applied contest to succeed the late Charles L. Emme, who so long and autocratically held the position.

It was also decided to close the public schools on Thursday and Friday of next week, and to provide about 20,000 small flags for the school children, who will assist in welcoming the President.

The rest of the session was devoted to back-biting, belly-ragging and hair-pulling on questions of parliamentary law. The performance was strongly suggestive of an academic literary society at white heat. Mr. Clifton put even stronger and asserted that the board was acting like a lot of school boys.

The small lobby was quite full, and if the proceedings of the board continue to grow in intensity and interest reserved seats will be in demand. The room was crowded with people, and admission if only to see the drama and altogether perilous adventures of Mr.
Foley on the high-mountain side of the Sixth ward. The Sixth actually rode at a gallop over the transcendent heights of oratory. Such a spectacular performance has not been given since the circus left.

At the last session it will be recalled the board got into such a tangle that it was adjourned sine die. The City Attorney relative to the decision of the chairman that six votes are required to take action, inquiring the expenditure of money.
Messrs. Foley, Hard, Horgan, Skilling and Henry wanted a salary of $500 per month. Chairman Washburn and Messrs. Simonson and Brown held that it was not lawful to create the extra position under the charter, and it was that side which would be quarantined to authorize the necessary additional expenditure. In the night Giffen was not present, and finally the board got into a parliamentary deadlock.

The report of the City Attorney on the matters that had been submitted to him was not read. Mr. Horgan objected to even having it read.
There's nothing in it," he said. "It is finally read, however, in effect, it upheld Chairman Washburn in his position.

Then the board started on a three-hour wrangle at catch weights. In view of the fact that Mr. Giffen was present last evening, Horgan wanted the Chairman to allow him to withdraw his appeal made at the last meeting.
This was refused by the chair. Mr.
Foley was on his high horse in a moment.

"There is no justice to this board to the people," he began, "when the Chairman will allow a member to withdraw his appeal. We want to go on the sentiment in the breast of members on a question that involves the salaries of the city and of the children in the lower grades."

"I believe there should be done in the open. We should act here in public. I am not afraid of the reporters.
There are other ways of dealing with them than by executive sessions. It is shame that this board should be subjected to such disgraceful comment as has been made on our meetings."

After this controversy had ebbed and flowed for about half an hour, Horgan was allowed to withdraw his appeal. Chairman Washburn then ruled that the validity of less than a two-thirds vote where money is involved, and the board was adjourned. Mr.
Horgan renewed his motion to appoint one deputy superintendent.
The motion was ruled out of order and was not to be taken up again.
Mr. Simonson made the conventional speech in favor of harmony. "I move that we elect one deputy as the charter revides, and if more help is needed it can be arranged later." "It is fair to presume that we all have the best interests of the schools at heart, and there is no need for this unseemly struggle over the election of a deputy."

Horgan promptly tacked on his motion as an amendment to that of Mr.
Simonson, which received a second reading from Mr. Giffen, and the fight was made all over again.

"I declare that amendment entirely out of order," declared the chairman.
"If it is out of order I shall feel compelled to move that we discharge the principals from the schools,"

Horgan replied. "It is out of order," echoed Skilling. "I shall move that the nine specially selected teachers in the branches of story, music, drawing, sewing, and others, be removed at once."

At this point Foley, who had been hardly reading a paper over the top of his spectacles, moved that the amendment to appoint two superintending teachers to act under the action of the superintendent. He suggested that the board might as well be the issue.

"Let us lay our malice on the table, let it into chunks and each take a piece to balance the account," was the savage suggestion of Mr. Foley. One of the members objected to having their malice cut into inch pieces, and refrained from laying it on the table.

not entice harmony from its hiding place, Mr. Foley produced from his pocket an editorial printed by an evening paper and proceeded to roll out in impressive tones some sparkling gems of satire.

"It is an infamous thing to call respectable gentlemen such names," he thundered. "It is an infamous outrage and is knowingly false. The man who wrote it is either afflicted with some peculiar form of insanity or is a candidate for Highlands. Pointing to a clause that insinuated that practical politics had been influenced on the action of the board, he demanded:
"Is there a member of this board who will admit that that statement applies to him?" The responses were not numerous.

Finding that he could not draw the fire of the rest of the board to the newspaper, Mr. Foley took a new tack. He said he was willing that all the criticism and anathemas should be heaped in one glowing pile on his own head, but that the children of Los Angeles must not go to the High School, to Palo Alto and to Berkeley deficient in English. His supervisors of special branches and only one of the common branches he thought unwisely.

Chairman Washburn said that he was trying to be fair, and tried to decide the points raised correctly.

"I favor additional help if it can be legally given the superintendent, but I think we should make haste slowly," he said.

After Mr. Foley had performed the high-wire act with two more heavenward flights of impassioned thoughtfulness, Mr. Clifton shied his castor into the ring with the proposal to elect a deputy superintendent and then appoint a committee to deliberate on the question of additional assistance.

The chair informed him that his motion conflicted with that of Mr. Simonson, made about an hour before and amended by Foley.

After a long parry, during which an appeal from the decision of the chair ruling Foley's amendment out of order, was sustained, it was submitted to a vote. In favor of the employment of two supervising teachers, as contemplated by the amendment, were: Skilling, Henry, Foley, Hard and Horgan. Washburn, Giffen, Brown and Simonson were opposed.

Chairman Washburn promptly declared the amendment lost on the ground that it entailed an expenditure of money.

"I make the point that this board has no legal chairman," said Horgan. "The rules require that the chairman must be elected by ballot. Mr. Washburn was elected by a viva voce vote."

"That is too trivial, entirely," replied the chairman.

"You can overrule me by ignoring the point," persisted Mr. Horgan.
throwing a book which he held on the table with some force.

When this question had been talked to death, a vote was taken on Mr.
Simonson's motion to elect a deputy.
Only Prof. Millard was nominated.
He received eight votes.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 1, 1901.

Jolly Benefit Combination of Local Native Sons.

Everybody who went to the White Memorial Fund benefit race home from the Los Angeles Theater and looked up their chicken coops; those minstrels were the "buddies" looking for of coons out of jail.

Even Harry Wyatt, who sat on a dais in elegance sublime, looked as though his good character were playing a one-night stand and might come off with his white gloves if there were a razor handy.

Guy Barham would have been arrested on sight, and Eric Pollock was enough to make little children cry. When the town can afford the luxury, Pollock is to be purchased outright and utilized as a public en-

Len Behymer, press agent at the Los Angeles Theater, had sent it to him. As usual it was the press agent who was at hand in time of public distress.

Pollock finally did so. He got up and sang a sound-deadened version of Zizy and they let him go for that time. But they had him on the list again, when he came coyly out with a little ping tartan skirt and did a ballet dance.

BARHAM'S FUN.
The opening remark of Guy Barham struck the crowd as one of the funniest things in the show. They had the laugh that was modestly hoped for first; then it would strike somebody else funny, and the whole about buying a pair of pants two inches too long. He wanted to go to a party, but neither his mother, sister nor the cook would cut them off. At last he found a tailor out of a job and he took off the extra two inches. He left the pants lying around and his mother on the way home from her club was stung with remorse. She picked up the pants and cut off two more inches; then his sister got sorry for her unkindness and cut off a couple of inches; finally the cook cut off two more inches.

"Did you go to the party?" asked the interlocutor.
"Ah did," said Alden sadly, "but Ah wore 'em for a bell."

with such sweetness of grace that their every move was a delight to the eye. But the came after the minstrel part of the performance. Homer Griffith opened the affair by singing a pretty waltz song called "Ma Blushing Rose" in a most charming way.

Oliver Morocco sang a funny parody on "I'm Getting a Big Boy Now." All about the Salt Lake road and other "localities." He told some rattling good stories, too.

Eugene Roth supplied about the only serious part of the performance by singing "Unrequited" in excellent voice. Harry Deets and wife and Eric Pollock sang the "Hoo-doo-doo-Man" in a way that it hasn't often been sung before.

The act knocked the original presentation of the song in vaudeville gully. The best of it was the dance that was really a wonderfully clever piece of work on the part of all three.

HOT FINISH.
The minstrel part of the show had a hot finish. Manager Wyatt got up, and after making a graceful little speech of acknowledgment, modestly said that if there was any credit to be given to any one, it belonged to him. Up rose Manager Pollock from the best of the line with blood in his eye. He desired to make a little correction. He had done most of it himself. Manager Morocco, from the other side, begged to make a little correction himself.

Guy Barham flew to his own rescue. Adolph Ramish said he would never play again. Al Levy said: well, they wouldn't let Levy say anything; they said him to sit down and keep still. Everybody sat on Levy. Just before he left home last evening his small daughter offered him the hot-water bag so he wouldn't get cold feet. Finally Hi Alden got up and said it was a dis-

Mr. Wyatt, much incensed, agreed with him.
"What is the cause of it all?" he demanded.
All: "This is the cause of it all!"

The orchestra swung into a march and in came a sailor coon with a big bass drum, and the curtain went down on "Strike Up the Band: Here Comes a Sailor."

May Titus Newton and several professionals contributed charmingly to the entertainment.

George H. Wood brought over from the Orpheum a supply of stories about doctors that about the best that have been heard in this neck of the woods lately. Hal Stephens gave imitations of the famous doctors, and Miss Annie Tregas gave a recitation, and Mr. "Last Rose of Summer" and one other piece. There was an interesting point about her "Last Rose" which she said it was a recitation that it is usually sung, as does Law.

The house was crowded to the doors, the Los Angeles baseball team being there in a body, fresh from its northern triumphs.

Members of the Executive Committee of the White Memorial Committee occupied one of the lower boxes.

PROGRESS IN PRINTING.
The Birth and Growth of One of the Most Potent Factors of Our Modern Civilization.

[New York Journal:] The origin of the art of printing is shrouded in mystery. It is impossible to say when or by whom it was first used, even in its crudest form.

found the art being practiced in the Far East, and it is on record that in the remotest ages of the world, stamps, with colored inks, on their documents of various kinds.

A similar sort of printing was found in the Sandwich Islands, and he brought home with him from one of the natives printed designs on the borders of their clothes. We have records that similar work was done in Saracenic Sicily in the eleventh century, on coverlets and vestments.

claimed that the reason why the ancients did not fashion some mechanical means for preserving their poems, scientific memoranda and ecclesiastical works was that the manuscript scribes were slaves, and that their maintenance was only a matter of about five cents a day, so the inventive minds of the age saw no possible profit in any attempt to multiply the few books or scrolls, called for, and as these manuscript scrolls of papyrus or parchment were only sought by the wealthy, the demand was easily supplied by the artisans of the pen and brush.

But as civilization began to advance and a thirst for knowledge became more general the distribution of the thought of the brightest minds demanded some ready means of spreading their teachings to the masses.

It was no longer possible, as in the days of the Greeks, to satisfy the thirst of the people by hanging the words of the philosophers in the streets of the city, or by the recitation of the teachings of the great forces of nature which could only come to them through the researches of the great minds of the age.

In 1456 Laurence Koster of Haarlem conceived the idea of cutting with a knife alphabets of separate movable type, which when set in rows, formed words and sentences, and when bound together and placed on the bed of the frame, could be printed by the inked and impressions pulled from them much in the same manner as is now done on the ordinary Hoe hand press. Another method practiced, as is shown in an illustration in "Pamphlet's History," was productive of much better results. It was not unlike the present way of taking proofs of galley of type with a roller. By this method, after the press was inked an ordinary wooden cylinder, possibly covered with some soft cloth, was passed over the type or wood blocks, and a printed sheet was the result.

From 1456 to 1800 is a long jump, but skilled labor and busy brains have made great strides as the years rolled by. It was not until 1810 that a machine printing press was constructed by Frederick Koenig of England, who had a patent issued to him in that year. It is easily within the memory of living persons when all books were printed on the hand press.

Let us assume a work illustrated with wood engravings, given in form of say eight pages of an octavo could be printed on the hand press. From this, the quality being first-class, the day's work would result in the neighborhood of about four hundred impressions, and this would require a careful pressman and helper. Today of the same work it is possible to improve a thirty-two-page work into a modern stop-cylinder press, and after being made ready we can safely count upon at least five thousand impressions in a working day, this being five times the number of pages possible on the hand press.

With the daily press the output is a marvel. The work of the press in this that can turn out thirty to forty thousand impressions an hour. This makes possible the printing of the newspapers until the last moment for the latest news, and we have then the complete records of the world's happenings at our breakfast table. How Koster and Gutenberg would open their eyes if they could drop in upon us in this nineteenth century.

Among other things that would set them a-wondering is the printing of both sides of the sheet and its delivery on the table, a finished product, folded and ready for the market; and no less a marvel is the press that will print six copies before the sheet leaves the machine, with color values all preserved.

It is said that the pen is mightier than the sword. If we couple the pen with the sword, the statement is incontestable, inasmuch as the records of the sword would rest on very few traditions if they were not imperishably preserved by "the art preservative of all arts," to be handed down to all time. The printing press is the most potent factor of modern civilization, and with one daily journal in its belt, and a newspaper in its gathering of the news and scientific presentation of the world's progress, it stands as the mighty recorder that marks our advance from the Dark Ages.

She Knocked Out an Armed Robber.
[Washington Post:] Mrs. Henry Betts, who operates a bakery in Cumberland, drove off a highwayman who attempted to hold her up one morning recently as she was coming along a lonely road from her home in Sulphur Spring, hollow to her place of business in this city.

The man thrust a revolver in her face and commanded her to give her money or die. She made believe she was reaching in the folds of her dress for her money, and as the man turned his head to one side she dealt him a powerful blow under the ear with her fist. The man sank to his knees and she kept r-firing blows in his head. He eventually regained his feet and rushed away upon the approach of a man.

Mrs. Betts is a muscular woman, noted for her fearlessness. Her hand is swollen to twice its normal size as the result of the thumping she gave the highwayman.

[Detroit Journal:] Doctors' fees are often stigmatized as robbery. A nice usage, perhaps, would call them pilage.

It is with pleasure that I state that I have had several teeth filled by Dr. Schiffman, and that he has restored the nerve and filled the root of one of my teeth with a porcelain crown which caused no pain. I was distinguished from a natural tooth, all of which was done with skill.

Of Davis & Bush, Attorneys & Counselors at Law, I have had porcelain crown work and some filling done, and they have done the work for me without the slightest pain, and the crown fitted perfectly. I have been very much pleased with the results.

noon and evening. A large audience will probably be present at both entertainments, for they will be unique in their way and well worth attending. Both lectures will be profusely illustrated with stereopticon slides, which will bring out the subjects in the best manner possible. The lecture this afternoon will be more particularly for children, and is entitled "Personality of Wild Animals." In this Mr. Thompson will give his experience with the bears of the Yellowstone region, the Dakotas and Manitoba. He shows pictures of all the wild animals, their peculiarities and habits, and enlivens the pictures with imitations of the calls and cries of the different beasts. The coloring of each species is also described. The subject for this evening's lecture is "Wild Animals I Have Known," and will consist of stories of the various animals so well treated of in the book of that name.

Best Refrigerators Made.
(THE LEONARD CLEANABLE REFRIGERATOR.)

A BROAD STATEMENT, BUT SEE HERE--

Partially cooled air is fed into the ice chamber, thus reducing the rapidity of the melting process. There are no less than eight distinct walls of wood, zinc, air spaces, mineral wool and sheathing. The patent air-tight locks fasten the doors both top and bottom and draw them into air-tight contact. A patent automatic trap keeps all air out of the waste pipe and flushes itself if it becomes clogged. It is large enough to hold the drip while emptying the waste pan. The ice rack is made entirely of heavy galvanized iron and is easily removed. No wood to get musty. All the water tanks are porcelain lined, faucets are nickel plated and tumbler racks are solid bronze. Cleaning is made easy by the manner in which all inside parts and shelves can be taken out. Leonard Cleanable Refrigerators are all made of ash or oak, and the castings are all solid bronze.

The Saving of Ice Is Due

First, to the fact that partially cooled air passes into the ice chamber, and Second, to the fact that the doors cannot be slammed shut. They must be closed and by pressing the lever down they are brought into air tight contact top, bottom and both sides. We have thoroughly investigated all refrigerators and have decided that the Leonard Cleanable Refrigerator is the best one on the market. It is handsome. It is cleanly. It is perfect in every detail. We have a full stock of all sizes and styles.

Parasites Cause All Hair Troubles.
Nine-tenths of the diseases of the scalp and hair are caused by parasite germs. The importance of this discovery by Prof. Anna of the Charity Hospital, Hamburg, Germany, cannot be over-estimated. It explains why ordinary hair preparations, even of the most expensive character, fail to cure dandruff; because they do not, and they cannot, kill the dandruff germ. The only hair preparation in the world that positively destroys the dandruff parasites that burrow up the scalp into scales called scurf or dandruff; is Newbro's Herpicide. In addition to its destroying the dandruff germ, Herpicide is also a delightful hair dressing, making the hair glossy and soft as silk.
